LIST OF THE DEAD

FULL LIST WILL NEVER BE KNOWN A CALL FOR RELIEF.

Many Bodies Flung on the Mainland and Others Floated Out to Sea.

The Latest and a Conservative Estimate of the Number of Dead Places It at Eighteen Hundred to Two Thousand, Probably More.

Not until the sea gives up its dead will the number of lives lost in the awful storm of September 8, 1900, which devastated Galveston and neighboring coast towns be known. On the flotsam of bay and gulf are unidentified who reach the shore like seaweed floating on the ocean's surface. Many have drifted out to the depths of the gulf to become prey for the sharks and fishes. Others have floated to the shore, where, being unidentified they are consigned to mother earth from which they sprang without shroud or coffin or the customary burial rites. These are sad circumstances to chronicle, but they are true.

At Texas City and at Virginia Point, and other places, the bodies of men, women, children and animals come in with the tide. Except where there is a ring or some piece of jewelry there is no clue to the identity of the unfortunate who last Saturday, full of health and happiness found that death cometh as a thief in the night, and unshriven strangers tenderly lay them to rest in hastily dug trenches.

A special correspondent of The Post, Mr. G. Herbert Brown, who arrived from Galveston last night at 10 o'clock, states that a conservative estimate of the dead is 1800 to 2000. It may reach 2500. The full list of names will never be compiled as whole families were washed out into the gulf and lost and their habitations blotted from the face of the earth, while hundreds of the bodies found are disfigured beyond recognition.

The names given below are authentic.

STANLEY G. SPENCER, local representative of W. W. Wilson, agent Elder, Dempster & Co's steamship lines and North German Lloyd steamship line.

CHARLES L. KELLNER, SR., a prominent cotton man.

RICHARD LORD, traffic manager George H. McFadden & Bro., cotton exporters.

WILLIAM DAILEY, agent for Charles F. Orthwein & Co., grain exporters and steamship agents.

Colonel L. J. Polk, general manager of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe railway, had been in the building but a short time before, and it was reported that he was among the dead. This, however, was untrue. He has been very active in trying to aid and obtain aid for the suffering.

Three negro servants are dead in same building.

St. John Labry escaped from the building with severe injuries.

RICHARD JOHNSON, colored, who left the cafe shortly before its collapse to summon a doctor for a man who had been injured in the storm, was struck by a flying timber and killed.

A Spanish sailor of the steamship Telesfora. The Telesfora went adrift and struck the Whitehall at pier fifteen, throwing the sailor on the deck of the Whitehall. Timbers from the top of the grain elevator fell on top of him and pinned him to the deck. His body was not discovered until morning.

Governor Sayers Calls On County and City Officials.

Urgently Requests the People Be Called On and Money, Clothing and Food Be Forwarded to Mayor of Houston.

Austin, September 10.—Governor Sayers issued the following today: To the Honorable, the County Judges and Mayors of the Several Counties and of the Several Cities and Towns of Texas:

In consequence of the severe storm of yesterday and the day before the loss of life and property at the city of Galveston has been appalling. The people there are in great distress and relief must be immediately had. I have therefore to urgently request you to immediately call upon your people for contributions of money, clothing and food. Action should be prompt. All supplies of food and clothing should be shipped to the mayor of Houston, Texas, who will see that it is promptly forwarded to the proper committee for distribution. All contributions of money should be sent to me, which I will transmit as soon as received.

JOSEPH D. SAYERS, Governor.

GALVESTON'S OFFICIAL MESSAGE.

The President, Governors and Other Officials Called Upon For Assistance.

The following message was sent to the president of the United States, governors of States, mayors of cities and all public officials: Unspeaking calamity has been visited upon Galveston utterly beyond relief. Large proportion of population shelterless, without food or raiment. Not one family has escaped serious injury. Local banks and financiers have advanced generous fund for immediate relief, but so great and universal is damage to employing industries many weeks or months must elapse before people can again become self-sustaining.

Galveston has always been quick to respond to distress of others and as confidently appeal to humanity of the world in the greatest calamity that has befallen any community in a century. Today we are gathering hundreds of dead. Tomorrow we must begin feeding and clothing thousands of destitute.

As soon as possible in the next few days this committee will communicate detailed information as to the extent of the suffering and devastation. Meanwhile we urge promptest relief to prevent death by starvation and disease. Send supplies to John Seely, chairman finance committee.
